Function4 Selected Among 2022 ENX Magazine Elite Dealers

ENX Magazine Announces Function4 Among the 123 Nation's Top Office Technology Dealerships Chosen This Year as a 2022 Elite Dealer

LOCATION — DATE – Function4, a leading managed technology services provider (MTSP), proudly announced they were selected as one of ENX Magazine's Elite Dealers in 2022. With thousands of companies vying for this recognition every year, Function4 was honored to have been selected as one of the top performing companies by ENX Magazine. While this industry is highly competitive, Function4 has found success by offering a broad, comprehensive business technology services portfolio and provides an array of services including IT managed services, voice applications, imaging solutions, managed print and even mailroom services for growth-oriented organizations that want to optimize their technology's performance as they scale.

"Our company is focused on streamlining operations, increasing collaboration and boosting productivity within our clients' businesses. We just so happen to rely on business technology in order to accomplish that end," stated Bill Patsouras, Principal of Function4. He later added, "Our central focus as a company is to solve problems for our customers, so that the technology we implement not only improves their profits, but makes their lives easier, too. When we can introduce cost-effective tools that help our clients accomplish far more than they realized was possible, we're proud of that. We're also proud to have built an organization that founded upon strong core values that prioritizes the relationship over long-term. It's a privilege for us to be recognized for our relentless commitment to putting our customers' needs first and for earning valuable client relationships that endure."

Each year, ENX Magazine judges Elite Dealer applicants on a number of criteria, from technical service excellence to marketing proficiency, growth initiatives, technology leadership, industry accolades and community philanthropic support. Those dealers chosen are profiled in the December issue of ENX Magazine.

"This year's roster of Elite Dealers is a testament to the courage, vision, determination and, most of all, leadership demonstrated in support of outstanding customer service in the face of substantial business challenges," said Susan Neimes, publisher and managing editor of ENX Magazine and ENX The Week In Imaging. "They have done a yeoman's job of proffering adaptable solutions to a fragmented, hybrid end-user community and are always on the hunt for new tools that can better serve their evolving needs. While the stakes have never been higher, our Elite Dealers ensure their personnel are equipped to deliver on their corporate mission, and that means creating a culture of excellence."
